

MOVEMENT OF TRAINS.

THE ELECTION.

EVERY EXCITEMENT RATES THE HOUR.

The office of S. S. Floyd & Co., on Fourth street, so impartially converted into a temporary headquarters, was thronged all day yesterday and all last night with anxious seekers for election news. The excitement was intense. Every train was affected by it. Stable-bosses and men and messengers for the nonce forgot themselves and participated in the glorious cheer that rent the air when news of democratic successes came in. Bulletins were received at frequent intervals during the day and at night, and the eager crowd of waiters pushed and jostled in order to catch the first words of the reader. As the varying tenor of the telegrams caused the hope of Cleveland's triumph to well up from patriotic hearts, or cast a gloom by announcing a sweeping victory for the tattooed traitor, so was onward and onward the progress of the election. But, as the returns favored the pending of telegrams favorable to repudiation of success. The return came in slowly from the country districts. We give below the tabulated statement of the votes, or about half the returns of the country. The figures show a grand democratic victory, but the vote is not as heavy as was anticipated.

GRASS AND HAY.

COTTON AND OTHER FIBERS.

DRY GOODS.

DRUGS AND MEDICINE.

FOODS.

FRUIT.

GROCERIES.

INDUSTRIAL.

IRON.

LEATHER.

LINEN.

MATERIALS.

MEAT.

MILK.

MEATS.

MINERALS.

MINING.

MINES.

MINES.

CLOSING OF MAIL.

Sent from Missouri Pacific 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.
Gulf and Colorado River 12:30 p.m.
Gulf and Colorado 12:30 p.m.
Western by H. & C. 12:30 p.m.
Eastern by St. Louis 12:30 p.m.
Western by Texas and St. Louis 12:30 p.m.

TIME.

TIME.